

Glast is finally launched

Contributed by Administrator
Wednesday, 11 June 2008
Last Updated Friday, 29 August 2008

NASA has finally launched GLAST, today June 11th at 12:05 Eastern time. After GLAST enters orbit, mission scientists will spend the next couple months switching on its systems and learning to interpret the data it collects. More info, see Glast website

Update: GLAST to be renamed FERMI (or rather Fermi Gamma-ray Space Telescope)